Dissatisfaction With the British Government About the South African War.

CRITICISM FROM ALL QUARTERS.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The plight of the British arm in South Africa is overshadowed by the present by the storm which is bursting over the head of the home Government. The Manchester speech of Mr. Balfour, the Government leader in the House of Commons, has aroused such a torrent of comment from press and individuals of his own party that were Parliament to reassemble to-day, it is doubtful if the Conservatives would retain power in spite of their tremendous majority of the present session.

The pent-up dissatisfaction with the Government's lack of energy in waging war is no longer concealed. When such ardent Conservative papers as the Times and the Globe come out boldly with proof, there is no knowing where the agitation will end. The provincial press has already taken up the cry. For the moment Mr. Balfour is the scapegoat, but there is a terrible rod in pickle for the Marquis of Lansdowne, while Lord Salisbury and other Cabinet Ministers will not escape unless a wonderful change comes over the war situation.

A reporter of the Associated Press learns that the conservative leaders privately admit the gravity of their position, but fail to see what can be done. In the meanwhile, the successes in the field will attract the popular clamor. Some of the conservative papers go so far as to regret the extreme age of the Cabinet ministers and refer to the Cabinet as a body of patriarchs. Under these circumstances it is doubtful whether events transpiring before the reassembly of Parliament would be powerful enough to restore confidence in the Government and maintain its majority.

There is the important alternative that Lord Lansdowne or Lord Wolseley may be sacrificed. A reporter of the Associated Press learns that Lord Wolseley not only disapproved of Lord Roberts' appointment to the chief command of the British troops in South Africa, but allowed his disapproval to be generally known. It is a fact that Lord Wolseley knew nothing of the Government's intention in this respect till he saw the announcement of the appointment in the newspapers. What ever ensues, the immediate future will doubtless see attacks on the Government such as Lord Salisbury has not had to withstand during all the course of his political career.

The borrowing powers conferred on the Government at the last session of Parliament are almost exhausted. About seven and a half out of eight millions of treasury bills authorized, have already been issued. The large revenues coming in, will, however, probably furnish ample funds until Parliament meets.

CORN AS A FOOD PRODUCT.
(Philadelphia Times.)

The chartering of two steamers to carry cargoes of corn from this port to Reval, in Northern Russia, taken in connection with the fact that several cargoes have already been shipped to the same port from other Atlantic coast seaports, shows that Russia begins to realize the value of American corn as a cheap food for its people, especially those living in the northern and colder sections of that country.

The difficulty heretofore has been to convince European consumers that corn could be utilized as a nutritious food for human beings. Large quantities have heretofore been shipped abroad for brewing purposes, but the prejudice against it as a food product was extremely hard to eradicate. Little by little, however, American corn has been making headway in Europe, and the Russian importation now in progress

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail. Home of Swamp-Root, free also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

gives promise of an extensive demand from that country in the near future. The sections of Russia in which corn can be grown profitably will also grow wheat, and the Russian farmers are likely to continue to raise wheat, leaving American corn to be imported as a cheap food for those who cannot afford to pay the prices wheat will bring in the European market.

Ireland's "Big Wind."

The night of January 6, 1900, was the sixty-first anniversary of the "Big Wind in Ireland." There have been other big winds, but there never was one that equaled the first one. Births, marriages and deaths are fixed before and after this particular big wind, and there never was a true born Irishman who has not heard of the "night of the big wind." Many tales have been told about this hurricane. According to the relations it came up about 9 o'clock at night if came like a summer breeze, but in a very short time it became furious. Some of the simple people of Ireland said it was the work of the fairies, who became displeased at the people. So they crawled under the bed and lowered themselves in wells to escape the fury of the elements. The next morning they came out to see what the "fairies" had done. They said they found that every haystack in Ireland was blown down. They found that straw had been driven through oak boards as clean as a carpenter would drive a nail, and there are some who declare that a stone as big as a freight car had been blown seven miles from its resting place. They found that the waters had been lashed into such a terrible state that huge waves were lying upon the shores of the lakes, and that sharks and small fish were found in the forests miles from their home in the ocean. The tale is told of the sailors who became shipwrecked, and landed on the back of a whale supposed to be an island, and the wind carried whale and sailors to a place of safety. Every clock on the public steeples was ruined or stopped, and the wind blew the whistles on the boats anchored at the wharves without an ounce of steam showing on the gauge. The people who remember this terrible wind tell how it carried the swords of the Knights and Lords from the scabbards, and left the powdered hair of the Queen as natural as the day she was born, and they say that the paint was removed from the barns, leaving the boards as bare as the day they came from the forest, and rocks were carried from Mt. Chevalier to the town, seven miles away. Others say the bells in the churches and schoolhouses clattered as they never clattered before, and chickens were found the next morning without a feather in their tails.

Leaves were found driven into the trunks of the trees, and corn was found cleaned from the cob on the stalks. Other terrible things happened 61 years ago on the "night of the big wind."

Mad Doctor Kills a Child.

HAMPTON, La., Jan. 11.—Dr. G. W. Appleby, for several years the leading physician at Bristol, near here, last night in a fit of insanity killed a ten-month-old child of Henry Wearley, of this place, while making an examination of it in Dr. Hobson's office in this city.

The parents had brought the child to Dr. Hobson's office to be treated for a trifling ailment, and before he had time to attend to it he was called out. Dr. Appleby, who was visiting Dr. Hobson, was in the office, and the latter suggested that Dr. Appleby should make the examination, which as soon as Dr. Hobson had left the office he proceeded to do.

He took the child in his arms and handled it, so roughly that the parents protested but to no avail. Suddenly he grasped it by the throat and choked it fiercely. Then he began swinging it around his head.

When help came and the child was taken from him, it was dead. Appleby declared that God had taken the child. Appleby was taken to an asylum. A few hours after the murder he seemed rational and said he knew what he was doing when he killed the child, but could not help it.

The cause of his insanity is supposed to have been religious excitement.

His Wife Saved Him.

My wife's good advice saved my life, writes F. M. Ross, of Winfield, Tenn. I had such a bad cough I could hardly breathe. I steadily grew worse under doctors treatment, but my wife urged me to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Pneumonia, Asthma, Hay Fever and all maladies of Chest, Throat and Lungs are positively cured by this marvelous medicine. 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at J. H. Williams' drug store.

Choked to Death Over Unexpected Feast.

The finding of a two-dollar bill by a man on Park Row, New York city, was the cause of his death, for he was so hungry that he went into the nearest restaurant and ate so ravenously that he choked to death. Who he was no one knows. He went into the restaurant on Park Row about 4 p. m. Frank Ryan, who for years has served the hungry there, asked what he wished.

"Give me some roast beef and bring it quick," said he.

It was no sooner on the table than he went at it like a man who had not eaten for a week. He stopped long enough to tell Ryan that he had just found a two-dollar bill on the sidewalk.

The man was only half through, when a large piece of the beef got fast in his throat and he made frantic efforts to swallow it. A policeman was called. The officer at once sent for an ambulance. When it arrived the surgeon pronounced the man dead.

New Battleships Will be Marvels.

Designs for the three greatest battleships in the world have just been agreed upon by the Naval Board of Construction at Washington. The new ships will be named the Georgia, the New Jersey and the Pennsylvania. There has been a long delay in settling upon the plans. The new ships will be as heavily armored as any battleship now in existence. With the addition of new American improvements, their fighting effectiveness will surpass anything now afloat. Their speed will be nineteen knots an hour—possibly even greater than that.

Each of these formidable ships will have a displacement of 14,000 tons and a coal bunker capacity of 3,000 tons. Each will be able to cruise 7,000 miles straightaway. No foreign power has anything to compare with them. They will cost $7,000,000 apiece.

A few doses of Dr. M. A. Simmons' Liver Medicine will do more for a Weak Stomach than a prolonged course of any other medicine. For sale by J. H. Williams, Hartford, Ky.

A Big Family.

The Greenup Gazette gives this account of a big Lewis county family. Mrs. Sophia Lewis, living at Tannery, Lewis county, was born February 8, 1813, and was married when she was only thirteen years of age. She is the mother of twelve children, eleven of whom are living. In addition to this large family of children, she has eighty-three grandchildren living and twenty-three dead, 144 great-grandchildren, all of whom are living, and twelve great-great-grandchildren. Mrs. Lewis' maiden name was Burris. She is the mother-in-law of Hon. James Cooper, recently elected by the people of Lewis county as their Representative in the Legislature. None of her children was tobacco in any shape, and three of her sons-in-law use neither of these articles. Mrs. Lewis resides in the house where Judge Paynter, of the Appellate Court, was born. Most of her descendants live in Lewis or Carter counties.

In 1899 there were 181 executions by hanging in the United States, an increase of 21 over 1898. Of these the Southern States had 100, and the North 81. Fifty-eight of those executed were white men, 72 negroes and one Indian. The total number of suicides was 5,340, as against 5,290 in the preceding year. There were 107 lynchings. Of these 103 were in the South and four in the North. Of the sufferers, 84 were blacks and 23 whites. Forty-four persons were lynched for murder, 11 for complicity in murder, six for alleged assault and one for assault and murder.

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saved Mrs. Hayes from an Operation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Words cannot express my thanks to you for your kind advice to me in regard to my health. I had been running down in health for about seven years. I had doctored with good doctors and taken a great many patent medicines. My trouble began when my first child was born. I had a very hard time and after its birth would have severe flooding spells. "I can say I have never seen anything so wonderful as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. Your remedies have done wonders for me. Hoping that many of my suffering sisters may be led to take your medicine from reading this letter, I remain, sincerely yours, MRS. MARY HAYES, HARDINBURG, KY."

Letters like the foregoing should convince everyone that Mrs. Pinkham's advice is certain help.

CENTUARY.

Name for the New Month Proposed to be Introduced Into Our Years.

UNIFORM NEW TIME ARRANGEMENT.

At the Paris Exposition an attempt will be made to have the entire world adopt the new calendar of 12 months devised and copyrighted by C. H. Bundy, editor of the Marion (Ind.) Morning News. It is to be urged before the commission already appointed to consider this ingenious new system, that it is the only uniformly practical method of measuring the flight of the years. No calendar in present use is satisfactory. The one used by Russia is days out. That in use in China was four days wrong, but has just been corrected by an imperial edict. Our own is forced to drop a leap year in 1900 to be with the sun. Bundy's solution of the vexed problem is the introduction of a new month, which begins the year and is called Century, in commemoration of its adoption between two centuries. The name is urged as being particularly well chosen in that it is not local to America, but would be acceptable to every country.

ABSOLUTE UNIFORMITY.

Every month will then have just 28 days. Every month and every year will begin upon Monday, which will also become the first day of every week, Sunday being the last. Every month will consist of just four weeks, thereby simplifying commercial transactions, and it will no longer be necessary to hunt up dusty calendars or almanacs to find upon what day of the week a certain date fell in previous years. Every day of the month will fall upon the same day of the week, year in and year out. Holidays, too, will always fall upon the same days of the week.

The plan only provides for 364 days, leaving the approximately one and one-fourth days over on each year. As soon as enough of this time has accumulated to form several days, an additional week will be added to the month of Century, making that year longer by seven days without disturbing the fixity of birth-days and holidays, which even under the present system are by no means 365 days apart, although we have come to regard them so.

There is some question as to whether the new month should come at the first or the last of the year. Mr. Bundy favors placing it at the first of the year, in order not to disturb Christmas, the people's favorite holiday.

HOLIDAYS SHIFTED.

Should the new month be placed at the first of the year, some radical changes in holidays will be made. Our present New Year's Day would disappear. Washington's Birthday would fall on the 23rd of January, "Innocent" as the author suggests, "respect should be paid to his memory on February 23—the twenty-eighth day of the year instead of the fifty-third, as at present." There being no month with 30 days, Decoration Day would disappear. It is suggested that it be set for May 28. The Fourth of July would become June 17, if it continued to remain as now the one hundred and eighty-fifth day of the year. Thanksgiving Day would fall on the last Thursday in November, as at present, and Christmas on the last Thursday in December.

These changes are not deemed objectionable, once the "shock" is overcome, and it is pointed out that their recurrence is already under the present system advanced one day each year.

The inventor of the proposed new calendar is confident that it will be adopted. It is claimed Commissioner Peck, the American Representative to the Paris Exposition, has promised his support when the commission meets. Mr. Bundy says the plan is growing rapidly in favor as it is becoming known and understood, and he has received many letters from prominent people approving the proposed change.

Room for Him, Too.
(New York Tribune.)

A bland and patronizing New Yorker was passing through a raw and new hamlet in the West, which its proud founders had dubbed B-City, and were aware would soon become a thriving hive of human beings. Addressing a lank and lazy youth who was lounging at the door of one of the rude shanties that passed for a "shoe emporium," the New Yorker inquired, sarcastically:

"Who is that important-looking gentleman with the red flannel shirt?"

"That's Sam Peters," was the proud

reply. "He's just opened the new post-office."

"And the tall person with no collar?"

"He's Long Mike. Just opened a grocery store."

"And the plump individual with the bald head?"

"Handy Jim. Owns the new saloon."

"Indeed?" said the New Yorker. "Your city seems to be pretty well started. I should suppose there was something left for a stranger like myself to open."

"Oh, I dunno," drawled the lanky one. "We ain't got no locustian asylum yet. You might start that."

Died Singing in Church.

Mourning for her dead friend whom she had dearly loved, singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee," with those who mourned with her, Mrs. Josephine Baldwin fell dead in the Jane Street Methodist Church New York City, Wednesday night.

Mrs. Baldwin had suffered with heart disease; so greatly did the sorrowful hymn affect her that her emotion overcame and was fatal to her.

Funeral services were being held in the church for Miss Winnestrom, of whom Mrs. Baldwin was long an intimate friend. Miss Winnestrom lived with her sister, Mrs. Hartel, on Eighteenth street, near Eighth avenue.

She died of heart disease, and her sudden taking off deeply grieved Mrs. Baldwin.

The church was crowded, and in the course of the service all it arose and joined in the hymn. Tears were streaming down Mrs. Baldwin's face, and while her voice quivered, she sang with fervor.

Of a sudden her face flushed, then paled, she uttered a shriek, stumbled, grasped at the back of the pew before her, and sank to the floor.

Those nearest hurried to her; the congregation was disturbed, anxious; the hymn faltered. Men carried Mrs. Baldwin down the aisle to an ante-room, where women chafed her hands and temples and sprinkled water in her face.

Physicians quickly answered their summons but, they said, Mrs. Baldwin had died almost immediately.

She was a widow, fifty-nine years old, and lived with her brother at No. 105 Charles street. Her body was taken to an undertaker's.

A Remarkable Ghost Story.

The citizens of the northwestern part of Bracken county, Kentucky, in the vicinity of the village of Minerva, will on the slightest provocation revive one of the most remarkable ghost stories ever heard. The astounding incident occurred more than 25 years ago, but the old settlers relate the affair as though it had taken place only yesterday. A singular part of the story is that the ghost was a daylight prowler. He did not wait until twilight or after dark to perform the ghastly trick which he did in this case. A respectable woman residing on a farm was engaged in making washing soap in the yard. A bright three-year-old boy was sitting in the grass near by. Suddenly in front of the very eyes of the mother, he arose and, with arms outstretched, faintly floated above the top of the fence to a graveyard about a half a mile away. The frantic mother followed, calling in vain to the little fellow to stop. With outstretched arms he moved along without paying the slightest attention to her cries.

While the terrified woman could see no one leading or carrying the boy, she felt that something—a ghost or unseen power—was impelling him forward. When the graveyard was reached the lad skinned over the fence in the same miraculous manner as at his home.

He reached the graveyard under which the remains of his ancestors were buried, he sat down in an apparently hypnotic state. His mother rushed up to him. The boy did not recognize her and jabbered away in an unintelligible way. She took him home and he has ever since been a hopeless idiot. Occasionally he talks about the other world and seems to be looking into a country that exists in space. No one has ever been able to furnish an explanation of the strange occurrence. One theory advanced by the superstitious is that the little fellow, who is now a grown man, with a mind that is blank, was afflicted as a punishment on the parents. The father and mother had buried children, who were not baptized, in a corner of their yard, but the older members of the family and those who had revived the rites of the church, were taken to the family cemetery on the hill about a mile away. No matter what may have produced the insanity in the child, there are many people who believe implicitly the story of the mother of the boy, who followed him to the graveyard on that fatal day.

Strictly Following the Bible.

W. B. Holmes, a wealthy grocer of Danville, Ky., is applying the strict letter of the Scripture to his business. Some time ago he surprised his friends by building a bonfire in front of his handsome store on Main street and piling on every cigar and every piece of tobacco in his store. No one was allowed to touch the tobacco until the last bit of flame had died away.

A few days ago he became satisfied that the selling of pork and lard was contrary to the Scripture, and his stock of both was likewise destroyed.

Mr. Holmes is a Presbyterian and a sanctificationist, and stands high in circles as a sincerely good man. He is a

CANCER IS DEADLY!

Results Fatally in Nine Cases Out of Ten—A Cure Found at Last.

This fearful disease often first appears as a mere scratch, a pimple, or lump in the breast, too small to attract any notice, until, in many cases, the deadly disease is fully developed.

Cancer can not be cured by a surgical operation, because the disease is a virulent the sore or ulcer—known as the Cancer—may be cut away, the poison remains in the blood, and promptly breaks out afresh, with renewed violence.

The wonderful success of S. S. S. in curing obstinate, deep-seated blood diseases which were considered incurable, induced a few despairing sufferers to try it for Cancer, after exhausting the skill of the physicians without a cure. Much to their delight S. S. S. proved equal to the disease and promptly effected a cure. The glad news spread rapidly, and it was soon demonstrated beyond doubt that a cure had at last been found for deadly Cancer. Evidence has accumulated which is incontrovertible, of which the following is a specimen:

THE HANGING SWORD.

Do you know the story of Damocles in the ancient myth-ology—the man who lived with a sword continually hanging above his head, suspended only by a single hair? Many a woman of the present day is like a woman of the past.

Damocles. She is living with a constant menace of danger hanging over her head because of some weakness or disease of the special organism which makes her a woman. It may seem comparatively slight and trivial at first but any instant it may develop into a serious and dangerous complaint, totally unfitting her for all the duties and responsibilities of a true womanly career.

"I suffer—very much—for more female weakness," writes a lady who has used S. S. S. for some time. "I wrote to you for advice," says Mrs. Anna Willy, (Michigan House), Northern Spunk Co., So. Dak.,
